Donation boosts
ag offerings

Sheridan College's agriculture education offerings will get a boost as a result of a $1.25 million gift from the estate of an early Sheridan County resident.

The gift from Whitney Benefits Inc. — created under the last will and testament of Edward A. Whitney, who died in 1917 — was announced on Thursday.

The University of Wyoming College of Agriculture will partner with Sheridan College to develop a horticulture option to the bachelor's degree in agroecology now offered by the university, according to a UW press release.
